Five Persons Killed in Fiery Crashes; Gasoline Truck Explodes in Indiana

Four Dead in Flame Seared Wreckage Near Texarkana, Texas

By United Press
Five persons have been killed in two fiery collisions involving trucks and 20 persons were hospitalized when a bus and truck crashed near Lincoln, Neb., and burst into flames.

The worst wreck occurred Thursday night when four persons died in the flame seared wreckage of two trucks and an automobile west of Texarkana, Tex.

Authorities said an Army truck from the Red River Arsenal smashed head-on into a grain truck. Moments later, a car rammed into the wreckage and touched off a fire.

Killed were Mrs. Bessie Hopper, 48, DeKalb, Tex.; her daughter, Mrs. Marie Wood, 26, DeKalb; Mrs. Curtis Carlton, 34, Brazoria, Tex., and an unidentified soldier driving the Army truck. The driver of the grain truck escaped injury.

Vehicle Crashes, Explodes

The driver of a gasoline truck was killed late Thursday when the vehicle crashed and exploded at Gentryville, Ind., and sent a river of flaming gasoline down U. S. 45.

The truck, loaded with 7,000 gallons of gasoline, rammed into a tree in the tiny southern Indiana community and flames from the wreckage burned down a nearby home.

The driver, Robert L. Metzger, 33, Mount Vernon, Ind., was trapped in the cab and burned to death. The truck exploded on impact with the tree, and then blew up a second time 20 minutes later with

IEA Seeks Higher Minimum Pay

CHICAGO (UP)—Illinois teachers are getting set to seek an increase in their minimum salary levels.

Delegates to the Illinois Education Association's annual meeting which opened Thursday, were expected to approve a program which would result in higher salaries for 3,000 to 4,000 teachers.

The program calls for boosting the minimum salaries of teachers who lack college degrees from $1,800 to $3,000 a year, those with bachelor's degrees from $2,400 to $3,200, and those with master's degrees from $2,600 to $3,400.

Lester R. Grimm, research director for the IEA, said the average salary for teachers in Illinois now is $4,750, but many are paid less, particularly in southern sections.

The proposed legislative program also advocates a graduated income tax and better assessment procedures, to provide more revenue.

a blast that rocked the entire hamlet.

Twenty persons were injured at Lincoln, Neb., when a bus and truck collided in flames on a city street. Most of the injuries were minor.

The Trailways bus was en route from Lincoln to Omaha when the crash occurred. Bus driver Bob Allison of Lincoln said he suddenly lost control of the vehicle, apparently as a result of a broken tie rod.

Witnesses said gasoline from the truck exploded several times.

Change Parking Lanes, Meters on 2 Sides of Square

Sneed Jordan's city street department is changing the parking lanes and meters on the west and south sides of the square preparatory to the inauguration of the new traffic lights at the Poplar-Main intersection.

Lanes have been painted and meters reset for parallel parking on the west side of the square and the street employees today were changing the meters on the south side. William Owen Jr., street superintendent, said the lanes would be remarked Monday.

The Skaggs Electric Co., which has the contract for the erection of the signals, was placing the lights on the four standards today.

Under the new setup, all parking in the blocks leading to the lights will be parallel and there will be no parking within 30 feet of each light. The state division of highways will inspect and give its approval of the setup before the lights are turned on. The state also will make traffic counts to determine the change periods of the lights.

One feature of the new lights, which will be paid for out of motor fuel tax funds, is that there will be lights for pedestrians as well as motorists. They will inform the pedestrians when to cross the streets.

Find Crude Homemade Bomb in Seat of Theatre in Times Square

NEW YORK (UP)—A crude homemade bomb wrapped in a red sock was found in a seat at the Paramount Theater in Times Square early today and police said it apparently was the work of the "mad bomber" whose explosives have injured 15 persons here since 1940.

Bomb squad detectives using a blast-proof truck swiftly removed the device from the theater which had been emptied an hour earlier following the last show.

Discovery of the bomb was made seven hours after police received a telephone call from a man who said a bomb would go off in the Paramount at 7:55 p. m. Without disturbing the 2,500 theater patrons, police searched the theater but found no trace of a bomb.

But during a more thorough search early this morning, police

Soviets Pull Three Divisions From Hungary

127 Trains Carry Tanks, Troops Across Frontier

BUDAPEST (UP)—The Russians have withdrawn three of the 12 to 14 divisions they had in Hungary at the height of last month's rebellion, independent non-Communist sources reported today.

One hundred and twenty seven trains have carried the tanks, troops and supplies across the Soviet-Hungarian frontier recently and the movement eastward is continuing, the reports said.

The information about the Soviet withdrawal has been received by several independent reliable sources here. It is believed designed to mesh with a master plan to build a Hungarian government similar to the "new look" Communist regime in Poland.

Fewer tanks stood guard in Budapest today and Soviet truck convoys laden with what appeared to be office furniture moved through the streets.

Two Soviet guards divisions were stationed in Hungary when the revolt first flared in October. Between 10 and 12 more were rushed into the country from Romania and the Soviet Union itself, according to reports, between Oct. 22 and Nov. 4.

The present reported withdrawal, therefore, represents a cut of one-fourth of the Soviet armored strength that was concentrated in the country during the worst period of the rebellion.

Meanwhile, the Hungarian Writers Assn., one of the most active groups early in the revolt, met in closed session in Budapest. Its members were discussing "recent events" and possibly examining reports of the revolt in the foreign press and by writers abroad.

Hungary's restive workers, meanwhile, were showing new signs of resistance to the present Soviet-supported regime. The workers' anger was being spurred by the nation's economic crisis which has resulted in widespread unemployment.

Val Gene Lukancic, Out on Probation, Jailed On Forgery Charge

Val Gene Lukancic, who was out on probation on a forgery charge, is back in jail for the same reason and officers said that he probably will be arraigned for violation of his probation.

Lukancic was put on three years probation in circuit court several months ago on a forgery charge.

He has been picked up on a charge of forging the name of Ben Sisk on a $12.50 check he cashed at the Martin Oil Co. service station here.

Lukancic was picked up at Shawneetown and returned here by county officers.

Johnson was arraigned yesterday before Justice of the Peace Vern Joyner Jr. and his bond was set at $5,000. He was placed in jail when he did not fill bond.

County officers declare they have a signed statement from a 10-year-old girl which accuses Johnson of rape. Johnson denies the charge.

Third Major Brush Fire Breaks Out In Bel-Air District of Los Angeles

Army Confirms Plans to Reorganize Combat Divisions for A-Age Warfare

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army formally announced Thursday night that it will reorganize its combat divisions next year to give them more speed and mobility for atomic-age warfare.

The announcement confirmed press reports of several weeks ago that such a step would be taken. The reorganization, the most drastic since the Army revamped its division structure at the outbreak of World War II, will result in a reduction of about 25 percent in the size of combat divisions.

The Army emphasized, however, that the move will not mean any cutback in overall Army manpower, now estimated at about 1,025,000 men. It said some 60,000 men freed from combat units under the new plan will be reassigned to supporting units.

Under the reorganization, the Army's 12 infantry divisions will be reduced from 17,500 men to about 13,800 men. Its two airborne divisions will be trimmed from 17,100 men to 11,500 men.

One airborne division, the 101st, already has been cut to atomic-age size. The Army said only minor reductions will be made in the size of the four armored divisions, which now have 14,500 men.

Instead of the present three regiments to a division, the command structure will be changed to give each division five combat groups. Each will be capable of fighting independently and will be responsible directly to the division commander.

Chances Dim for Slave Laborer to Rejoin Mother at Johnston City

By UNITED PRESS

The brothers of Rudolph Czerni, 46, a former Russian slave laborer, indicated today that chances were dim he could ever return to the United States for a reunion with his aged mother.

Rudolph was among 19 persons who arrived in Vienna, Austria, Sunday from Russian slave labor camps. He told officials he was an American citizen.

However, U. S. Immigration Service officials, who checked out Rudolph's story, said they learned he was deported from the U. S. to Yugoslavia in 1939 following convictions for rape, assault and confidence game. They said he was inadmissible to the U. S. under the 1939 deportation act.

One of the brothers, John Chermie of Ziegler, Ill., expressed surprise at the Immigration Service report.

"If these things are true, I don't know anything about them," John said. "We'll find out if they are true and if it is the truth, I don't think I'll do much to get him home."

Their mother, Mrs. Mary Chermie, 84, of Johnston City, Ill., also was unaware Rudolph had been convicted and deported, John said.

He said they had received a wire from Rudolph saying he was married and his wife was living in Sussex, England. That news also came as a surprise to Mrs. Chermie and himself, John said.

Another brother, Fred Chermie,

Milwaukee, Wis., said he was "glad my brother is alive" but doubted if Rudolph could return home.

Fred said he had received several letters from Rudolph and had tried to have the deportation order rescinded without success.

Fred said Rudolph had served in the Austrian army during World War II. Upon his release Sunday, Rudolph told authorities he was captured by the Russians while working for the American Army in Frankfurt.

Matt Chermie of Ely, Minn., another brother, said he had not seen Rudolph since 1937. He said he knew Rudolph had been deported from Illinois, but didn't know what the charges were.

Matt said he is waiting for news by letter or telephone from Rudolph.

"The report he was freed by the Reds was a wonderful Christmas present for our mother," Matt added.

John said the family previously had believed Rudolph was dead. He said they received a letter written in Russian and bearing Rudolph's signature about a year ago, but didn't know "whether to believe he was alive or not."

The family originally spelled its name as Czerni, but changed it to the English spelling.

Shawneetown Man Bound Over to Grand Jury on Knifing Charge

Willie Hall, 62, of Shawneetown, charged with assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the knifing of Harold Mitchell, 50-year-old cafe operator in Old Shawneetown, yesterday waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to a Gallatin county circuit court grand jury.

His bond was set at $2,000.

Hall was arrested after Mitchell was cut in the throat at the cafe early Sunday. Mitchell was released from Pearce hospital in Eldorado Wednesday morning.

President May Ask Authority To Use Troops

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower may ask Congress for standby authority to use American armed forces in the Middle East, administration officials reported today.

The idea of using American forces, if necessary, is expected to be raised by the President and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles when they meet with leaders of both parties in Congress at the White House New Year's Day.

Reaction of congressional leaders will determine whether the President will ask Congress for standby authority to use armed forces in the Middle East.

The idea of seeking standby authority on troops in the Middle East has been under consideration by the Eisenhower administration for more than a year. The President even considered calling a special session of Congress at the time of the British, French and Israeli attack on Egypt. But it was decided to work out a peaceful solution, if possible, through the United Nations.

In January, 1955, Congress overwhelmingly voted the President standby authority to use American forces in the Formosa area.

Weeks Predicts Continued High Economy

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks predicts continued "good times" and "new records" in the nation's economy next year.

In a year-end economic review, released Thursday night, Weeks said trends indicate that over-all employment, income and production should be higher in 1957 than this year.

He said, however, that in view of the economy's "present high pace, the rate of expansion may not be so fast as now." But "barring grave emergency," he said, "the economy as a whole should set new records."

Weeks said "our chief economic problems are how to avoid excesses, especially with regard to cost and price increases and the use of credit..."

New Blaze Less Than 20 Miles of Malibu Flames

California Gov. Knight Declares State of Disaster

MALIBU, Calif. (UP)—The third major brush fire in three days of West Coast inferno broke out early today in the fashionable Bel-Air district of Los Angeles.

The new fire was less than 20 miles away from here where 1,200 firefighters are battling flames that have blackened nearly 27,000 acres and turned this movie colony into a "disaster" area.

The harried Los Angeles city fire department sent 12 engine companies manned by 110 men to the residential area in Bel-Air where flames were reported licking over dried up foothills.

A fire department spokesman said no homes have been destroyed yet. He said "There is a good chance of containing this fire before it does any damage." No injuries have been reported.

The cause of the latest fire was not known. But fire officials said an arson squad is investigating both the fires here and the blaze at Bel-Air.

Flames have eaten up the parched Malibu soil and destroyed at least 60 homes. The fire exploded through the streets of an area here early today and came within a few yards of the swank $350,000 Malibu Sands Hotel.

1,000 Flee Homes

The flames swept over the Santa Monica mountains into a business area which had been evacuated earlier. Sweating firefighters stood on rooftops of buildings and houses as the fire moved down the center of a street.

The firefighters sprayed homes and buildings with water and were believed to have saved all structures in the area.

More than 1,000 persons fled their homes during the night as a second major brush fire broke out within seven miles of where 1,200 firefighters were battling a two-day fire.

Gov. Goodwin J. Knight declared Thursday night a state of disaster existed in the area.

The new fire in less than three hours had charred 2,000 acres and destroyed 15 homes. Residents fled in terror as the fire exploded in tinder-dry canyons.

Smoke Hampers Rescuers

"There is so much smoke we can't get crews in there," said Fire Chief Keith Klinger who is heading the army of firefighters. "We just hope that every one got out."

The new brush fire started in a heavily populated area near what is called Hume Tract. It was whipped by strong northeast winds and headed inland after destroying the 15 homes.

Klinger said it was impossible at this time to estimate when the fires might be brought under control. He said it might be "three or four days" before the flames can be quelled.

Crews Begin Backfires

The first fire is the "hottest" on its western front. The eastern front near Malibu Colony was reported "well in hand" by firefighters. Crews began backfiring a 2,000 acre section during the night to halt the flames advancing on the northwest sector of the Santa Monica Mountains.

One man burned to death in the first fire, scores were burned and the two fires thus far have destroyed at least 60 homes. It was estimated by the sheriff's office that damage across more than 35 square miles from property destruction and erosion already has reached $60-million. The two fires still are edging toward more built-up areas.

Russia Finally Branded

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

Not since the United Nations branded Red China an aggressor in Korea has the world organization fastened the stigma of blame so firmly upon a great power as it now has done in condemning Soviet action in Hungary.

Evidently convinced that Russian citizens will learn one way or another of the U. N. censure, Soviet propagandists already are busy trying to explain it away. They charge that the whole thing is an "American plot" to divert world attention from the troubled Middle East.

Unfortunately for the Kremlin, it cannot easily get around the fact, however, that the guns are still in the Middle East while Russian soldiers are still firing on Hungarians. Many Russians, practiced at extracting kernels of truth from the mountains of propaganda they face, understand that all is not well in Hungary.

No matter what excuse the Kremlin leaders offer, they cannot erase, either, the fundamental fact that the U. N. did condemn Russia's action and call again for withdrawal of its troops from Hungary.

Viewed from this side, the most interesting thing about the condemnation resolution was that two usually neutral nations, Burma and Ceylon, voted among the 55 who favored the proposal. The eight negative votes came entirely from the Soviet bloc.

And, though 11 other countries of the Afro-Asian bloc abstained, it is fair to note that two important members of the group—India and Indonesia—had sponsored an alternative resolution which would have "deplored" rather than condemned the Soviet Union's repressive action.

Milder though it was, this resolution represented the strongest move yet initiated in the Afro-Asian bloc on the Hungarian issue. Coupled with the favorable votes on condemnation by Burma and Ceylon, it gives encouragement to those who are loathe to see these nations draw some kind of artificial distinction between aggression and oppression in their parts of the world and the same actions elsewhere.

If it is wrong to grind people down, to shoot them in cold blood when they rebel, then it is wrong everywhere, not just in Egypt or Algeria or India or Afghanistan. There can be only one code of international morality, and he who would invoke its protection for himself must subscribe to it for all nations, regardless of geography, religion, race, or language.

The vote and the debate on the U. N. resolution have aroused warm hopes that many nations in Africa and Asia are coming to fuller understanding of this vital point.

"He Seems to Be a Lot Less Rigid"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Army Is Tunneling Through Greenland Icecap; Silos Dug In Ice May Store Gasoline In Future; One Ice Runway Can Change U. S. Defense System.

(Editor's Note — This is the final column in Drew Pearson's report on Christmas in the Arctic.)

HARMON, Newfoundland. — Most interesting construction project anywhere in the world is being carried on in northern Greenland under Lt. Col. Elmer F. Clark of the 1st Army Engineers Arctic Task Force. He is building a subwaylike tunnel under the icecap, also silos out of ice and a huge room out of ice.

The basic principle is to pour snow in the same manner we pour concrete in warmer climates.

Already Colonel Clark has concocted an ice silo for the storing of gasoline. I always thought silos were solely for the purpose of storing cow feed, but Colonel Clark is proving the contrary.

"An ice silo won't leak a drop," he told me, "and we believe the gasoline will be purer after a winter in the silo because the moisture content will evaporate." Since the Air Force has to spend a lot of money building gas-oil tanks in the Arctic, the Army Engineers' ice silos could be a great saving.

"We have also dug out a room about 60 feet long," Colonel Clark explained. "It has a snow and ice roof over it 170 feet high. There are no supports to hold up the roof. The ice forms its own support."

The tunnel which the Army Engineers are digging into the Greenland polar cap is now about 650 feet long. In some cases, the tunnel is constructed merely by cutting out a deep trench, then pouring snow on supports to form the roof. After the roof is steady, the supports are removed—as with concrete supports—and the roof remains solid. The snow roof is only four feet thick and does not melt in the summer. Native Greenlanders, descended from the Eskimos have given up snow construction, but the Army now finds it perfectly practical.

NEWFOUND FRIENDSHIP

Col. John Batjer of Houston, an enthusiastic Texan without Texas braggadocio, waxes really enthusiastic about Newfoundlanders. He's the commander at Harmon Air Force Base, where about 1,500 Canadians work under him. He also lends a helping hand to the little town of Stephenville, a onetime fishing village of 150 which has mushroomed to 6,000 Newfoundlanders since the Americans established a base at nearby Harmon. Newfoundland conditions are different from Greenland. Here American wives can be stationed on the base, and there is contact between Americans and British in 101 ways. Colonel Batjer sits in on Stephenville chamber of commerce meetings, has organized a committee of 21 to work on joint Newfoundland-American problems. His Air Force fire chief sits on the council, together with the Canadian fire chief, likewise school officials, police officers.

"Suddenly I have found myself with children," exclaims the colonel referring not to himself but his community. "Children grow. They get older. When they grow they have to have schoolhouses. We thought we had an extra schoolhouse, but now we have to start a high school, so we're right back where we started. We're just bustin' out all over."

Colonel Batjer, however, seems adequate to it. He's not only a base commander and a school constructor but a diplomat, holds biweekly sessions with newly arrived troops to instruct them on improving Canadian-American relations.

Note — In northern Greenland, Commander Orla Jensen, whom I met last year, is still in Thule, still representing the Danish government, and still pays tribute to Danish-American relations in Greenland.

ICED RUNWAY

When you get a smash hit on Broadway, most authors of that hit buy themselves a Rolls Royce or a Cadillac, a butler and a penthouse.

In contrast, Adolph Green, who has just written "Bells Are Ringing," lay on the floor of the Hotel DeGink at Harmon, Newfoundland. Under his head was a fur parka. He was fully clothed.

"We will now begin our course on swine-raising in ancient Britain," said Mr. Green, addressing a bevy of Broadway beauties, also reclining on the hotel floor. "This is a two-year course and those who won't be here to finish it will not be enrolled. Please feel reasonably sure we will all be here."

Mr. Green and company had been up since 4:30 a. m. At that time we had got aboard our Mats Constellation bound for New York, only to skid clumsily over icy runways. We couldn't get off the ground.

"You should be back in New York counting your royalties," quipped Clara Cedrone. "Instead, you're sleeping on a hard floor with Drew Pearson."

"The problem in this course," continued author Green, unperturbed, "is to find the derivation of the Hampshire swine. Did it come from Hampshire? Also, certain Manhattan swine. It will take us at least two years to study the derivation of ancient swinery and its effect on present-day swinery."

While Mr. Green sleepily orated, Omaha, Neb., was on the telephone to Harmon. Strategic Air Command headquarters wanted to know what had happened to the runway. The fighter command was also worried.

The Air Force had been on the alert ever since Russia sent notes threatening France and England with missile attack. An iced runway in Newfoundland would mean no bombers could take off. This could upset the entire chain of American-Arctic defense. For the first time I began to get a vivid first-hand picture as to why these Arctic bases are so important. Why it is necessary to keep 20,000 American troops guarding them day and night.

Colonel Batjer decided to sand the runway. Snow-plows and bulldozers began to roll. The jet fighter command called to know what kind of sand he was using. Fine sand was O. K., or large rocks. But if pebbles of one-eighth to one-quarter of an inch in size got mixed in the sand, they could get sucked into a jet engine. One pebble could spoil several million dollars worth of machinery.

I began to realize even more of the intricate problems of weather and defense.

Finally the runway was sanded. Old man weather, man's greatest enemy in the northland, was conquered or at least circumvented temporarily. We left for New York, Washington, and home.

Rally Jan. 4 to Launch Drive for Wesley Building

CARBONDALE, Ill.—Nearly 1,500 leaders, workers and other laymen from the Southern Illinois Conference of the Methodist Church are expected for a conference-wide rally in Carbondale January 4 to officially launch a CRUSADE to raise $260,500 for a new Wesley Foundation building adjacent to the Southern Illinois University campus.

C. E. Skiles, Mt. Carmel oil executive who is general chairman of the CRUSADE, says the rally will begin at 7:30 p. m. in Shryock Auditorium at SIU. Appearing on the program will be J. Lester Buford, Mt. Vernon superintendent of schools; Harold Fischer, Granite City banker; George H. Hand, SIU vice president for business affairs; and the SIU choir.

The Carbondale Wesley Foundation, started by the Southern Illinois Methodist Church less than three years ago to serve as a religious foundation for Methodist students at SIU, currently uses a temporary dwelling which Skiles says is wholly inadequate to serve the 1,000 students of Methodist preference among the 6,255 persons enrolled at SIU.

Skiles today also reported 172 persons have accepted leadership responsibilities in the 25 church sub-districts comprising the four conference districts for which CRUSADE chairman were previously announced. The districts are: East St. Louis, Carbondale, Harrisburg and Olney. Sub-District leaders now are recruiting workers in local churches to carry the campaign for the new Foundation building to a climax in the next two or three months.

Among the sub-district leaders are the following from Harrisburg Sub-District: John Hausser, Mrs. George Skelton, Harold Scott, Eldorado; Mrs. Ira Adams, Equalizer; Tom Holderby, Ridgeway, and E. Bishop Hill and Don Williams, Harrisburg.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D. (Written for NEA Service)

The social whirl of the season is just at its height. There have been dinners and parties and little get-togethers all week. We have enjoyed the pleasures of the season.

Occasionally we have given a moment of thought to the hardships of people in other lands. Seldom have we put ourselves in the shoes of the other person to understand his brief, his suffering and his need.

Let us not be satisfied with things as they are. Let us broadcast our belief in God and in people so that all nations may know our condition.

All that we enjoy is founded on spiritual principles which have been put into a way of life. We must ever raise our spiritual standards for ourselves and all mankind.

Coal Production In Illinois Best Output Since 1951

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Illinois coal production for 1956 was estimated today at 48,450,000 tons, an increase of 6 per cent over 1955 and the greatest output since 1951.

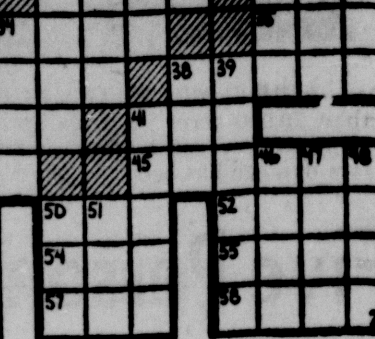

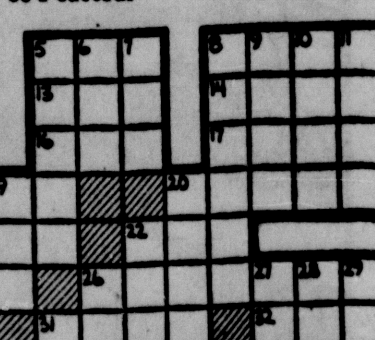

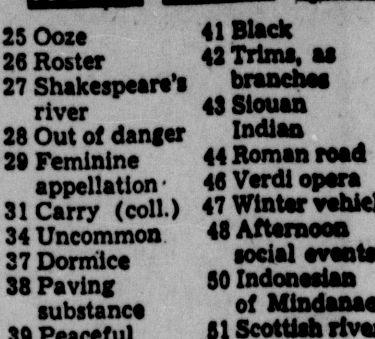

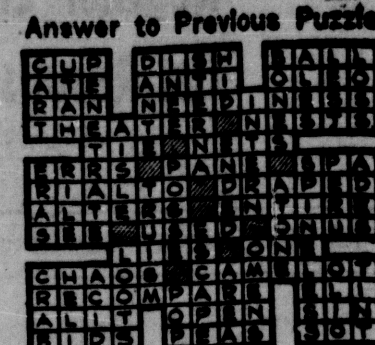

In his year-end report, State Mines and Minerals Director Ben H. Schull said Illinois coal production through November totaled 43,458,874 tons. December production was expected to add about five million tons to the year's total.

Schull said Illinois production would account for about 9.7 per cent of the estimated national tonnage of 500,000,000 tons.

His report said 19 men were killed in Illinois mines in the first 11 months of the year and 947 were injured.

A DOCTOR for BLUE JAY COVE

By ELIZABETH SEIFERT

Copyright 1956 by Elizabeth Seifert. Distributed by NEA Service.

There really was such a town! Cass had heard about it, by mouth and by letter, for as long as three years—and now on a September morning, she and Alex were driving steadily toward it. They had spent the night in St. Louis, risen early, and now, to quote Alex, were "dropping down the road" to the Cove.

Alex said the river was the basic thing, and the creek which ran into it. There had been wood at the Cove, formed by the junction of the two streams, trees to cut and pile on the bank for the river steamers. At nightfall they used to nose into the muddy creek bank, load up with fuel by torchlight, then go on their way at dawn.

A camp of woodcutters had become a small settlement; as the trees were cut, the work, and the homes, had edged up the steep hills. Then the medicinal springs had been discovered. Some built permanent summer homes; Matt's great-grandfather had been one of these. His grandfather, also a doctor, began to care professionally for some of the summer visitors. Stores were opened, a post office installed, people began building year-round homes. As the woodland withdrew still farther from the Cove, and the need for wood lessened, farms were laid out, and orchards planted.

Dr. Knapp, Sr., built an especially fine home, stayed there one winter, and the next. Patients came, and stayed. And sent for their friends. It was all a gradual thing, building up like the deposit of river silt.

"But the hospital..." she mused, "the whole medical picture in Blue Jay Cove..."

"We speak of it as the Cove," he told. "It's quicker. And you do know about the hospital; it's called House Springs. Patients are referred there for special care; the spring water still features, but the inclination now is more to therapy and re-education. We care for chronic cases, some convalescent—and of course some problem ones." And for a time at least Alex was to be on the staff of this place.

"It is an unique hospital," Alex was saying, "in that we strive to make the needs of the individual patient our first consideration. We do this in the matter of food and baths and hours. We give instant response to what the patient considers an emergency; we keep our census small so that we can consider every patient and accomplish our primary purpose of robbing him of anxiety."

"Is yours the only...?" "No, there's a town hospital, too. Small, but adequate to a small town only a hundred miles from the city."

Cass sat thoughtful. "If you can live and work in a place so different from what you've been doing..." she began.

"Anything would be different from the Navy."

"You had such a good residency offered you," she murmured.

"I know. But I owed some time at least to my home town, and to my mother. Compared to what she gave up for me..."

"Does she know you're making this sacrifice, Alex?"

He didn't answer at once, and Cass turned to look directly at him. He was a big man, Dr. Alexander Ward. Tall, broad-shouldered. Black, thick hair, dark eyes, and a wonderful smile. Not handsome in the pretty sense, but extremely attractive.

Cass had first met him three years ago when he was doing his residency at a New York hospital, and when she was getting used to her job as private secretary to one of the executives in a big trust company. She had liked Alex from the first, but she was doing quite well for herself, and would not marry him then. When he had gone off to serve his two years in the Navy, separation had helped his cause. Still, after his return, it had taken some persuasion on his part to convince her that she wanted to give up her career to carry and come with him to Missouri, to Blue Jay Cove.

"Yes," he was answering her now, "I think my mother would want me to make this sort of sacrifice."

Cass wanted to ask what she was like, his mother. Instead, she said something about being afraid his mother had not wanted him to bring home a wife...

"Oh, she couldn't be surprised," he said with the grave absurdity which so enchanted Cass. "And don't ever try to persuade her," he continued earnestly, "that I had to talk like a Dutch uncle to get you to marry me, over your better judgment."

Cass felt, from a word here, an anecdote there, that she had a pretty good picture of Alex's mother. Cordelia Ward was undoubtedly a noble woman who had raised her family under difficulties. Alex's father had died when he was a young boy. The mother had been fighting a desperate battle, rigidly. She still felt that need to control, to guide.

Her family consisted of an 18-year-old daughter, Alex, who was 29, and now, Cass Denton Ward. Twenty-five, red-haired and a person of more determination than Mrs. Ward would, perhaps, enjoy.

He was pulling into one of those scenic turn-outs in the road which are helpful in many ways. "Going to show you the lay-out," he said gruffly.

The town lay below them like a toy village, even to the miniature train which was snaking along the river bank. Alex's pointing finger indicated the places of interest.

Broadway, which followed the river; it was on the levee, said Alex. There, he said, were most of the shops, the banks, the business offices. At right angles to Broadway, neatly bisecting the "map," was Main Street, which sloped upward—"Steep as a ladder," said Alex—"to the domed courthouse. Branching off from Main Street, ruffled and filled with tall trees, were other streets. Avenues. One could see house tops, the roofs of larger buildings that were schools. A half-dozen churches! He pointed out a dense band of trees at the far edge of the scene—that, he said, indicated the course of Blue Jay Creek. "Beyond the courthouse," he continued, "can you make out a sort of semi-circle? A big white building with a green roof? That's the hospital! Over there to the north of it are the springs; all those buildings along the half-circle belong to the hospital. And down there, that white blob you see—that's home."

Cass sat staring at the "blob."

"Over here," Alex continued, "the pink spot—that's the home of our only millionaire, Adrian DeGreefe. Queer as Aunt Hester's hat, but stinking rich."

"I want you to like the place," he said tightly—so tightly that Cass glanced up at him. "But in case you don't, why, remember that our stay here may be only a temporary thing."

Cass thought about that more than about the town which they were entering, and she was still thinking about it when he pulled up in tree shadows before a big white house. A huge white house, it was, rising a full three stories, topped with a massive roof of red tile, girdled with porches and balconies. There were no grounds, but the house itself was stupendous. Cass snatched at details, the Romeo and Juliet balcony over the front door—a glittering, leaded, plate glass door! Around to the side there was a carriage house, now used as a garage, but still with living quarters above it.

She whirled on Alex, both dismayed and fascinated; he had not told her, she accused, that it would be a mansion!

"It's a boarding house," he blurted, stepping out of the car, and coming around to her side. "Over at the side porch there's a sign—a big one. It's called The Haven. My mother takes care of out-patients for the Springs Hospital."

He was being unnecessarily blunt.

"I thought," she said, "that your mother needed you..."

"Financially? Oh, no..."

He smiled thinly and opened the door, holding out his hand to her.

"What did the Knapps do for you?" she asked.

"It's what they did for Aunt Cordy," he said. Then he stopped, and actually groaned. "Oh, Lord!" he cried, as if in despair. "That's what everyone in town calls her, darling. She—and the Haven—are institutions."

CONSTIPATED?

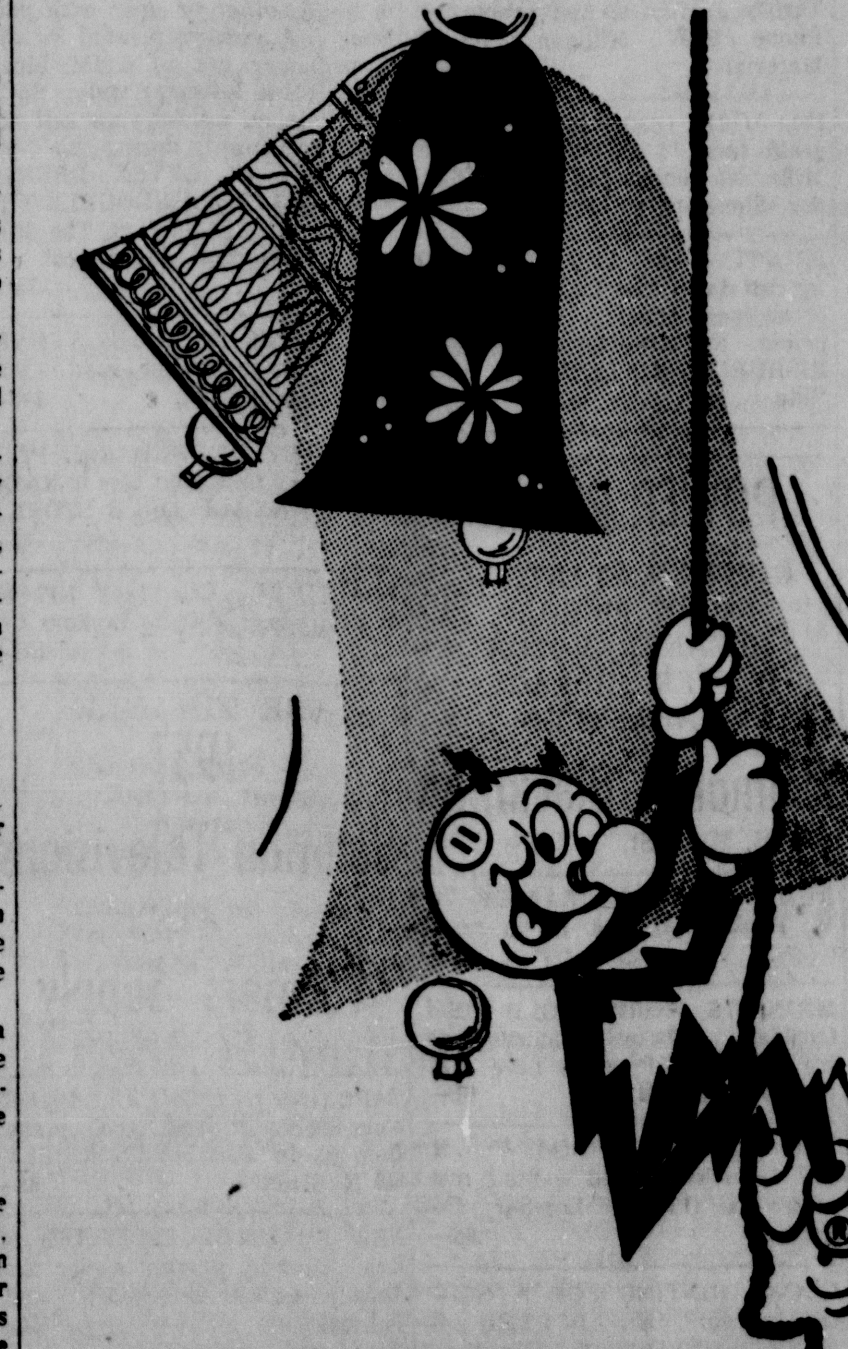

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, flat or gripes

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrifty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

Only a bulk laxative can 1) re-moisten this dry, shrunken waste and 2) supply vital bulk to recreate a normal urge to purge. And, of all bulk laxatives, COLONAL, the new laxative discovery, neither grips, bloats nor grips; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions. It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONAL exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONAL, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98c for the 40 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2c per tablet.

Celtics Set New Records

By United Press
The National Basketball Association's record book isn't safe from the high-flying Boston Celtics these days.
Rookie Bill Russell set a new rebound record on Wednesday night and on Thursday night, Bill Sharman established a new consecutive free throw mark in leading the Celtics, runaway Eastern Division leaders, to a 97-82 win over the Rochester Royals.
Sharman, who held the previous free throw record of 50, extended it to 55 before missing a conversion early in the second half.
The Philadelphia Warriors opened up a 30 point halftime margin and then easily romped to a 112-87 win over the New York Knickerbockers, the Fort Wayne Pistons chalked up an equally easy 120-93 win over the Minneapolis Lakers and the St. Louis Hawks defeated the Syracuse Nationals, 102-95 in other games.

Picking the Bowl Winners

IN THE Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Fraley's final follies of 1956 to give you the football bowl "winners" — and I never thought you'd have enough money to last out the year.
Rose Bowl
Iowa over Oregon State — Here a guy could get highly technical about multiple fractured offenses and compound felonious defenses. That way, everybody would get mad at everybody else, nobody would understand what anybody was talking about and they'd still have the Rose Bowl parade anyhow. To sum it up — just happen to like Iowa.

Cotton Bowl
Syracuse over TCU — This is a case of when an orange is not an orange and will it pack more safely in cotton. Syracuse, for some daffy reason nicknamed the "Orange", was squashed thoroughly in the 1953 Orange Bowl. But exhaustive research has shown that Horned Frogs (TCU, yuk-yuk) do not thrive on orange peels like Florida cattle. Now can you give me a better reason for picking Syracuse?
Sugar Bowl
Tennessee over Baylor — Mother always kept her mad money in the sugar bowl, but that ain't the reason. Remember Davey Crockett was a volunteer. And remember what old Davey did to that carry b'ar in Tennessee. Let 'em carry Bowie knives in the second half and I don't see how Tennessee can lose.
Orange Bowl
Clemson over Colorado — The Buffaloes picked up a lot of support when they did just that to mighty Oklahoma for the first half. Then the roof caved in — and now the walls come tumbling tumbling down. From a technical standpoint, each team will field 11 men.
Gator Bowl
Pitt over Georgia Tech — This, undoubtedly, earns me the accolade as the idiot of the week. But I like my lines big, rough and armor-plated. That's Pitt.
Sun Bowl
Texas Western over George Washington — This will be a tremendous encounter between two always-dangerous adversaries. How is that?
Tangerine Bowl
Mississippi Southern over West Texas State — Cuz I like tangerines. And where else can you start the year with seven straight losses?

Carrier Mills, Rosiclare to Clash For Tourney Championship Tonight

Wildcats Beat Eagles, 84-67; Metropolis Loses

Carrier Mills and Rosiclare will clash at 8:30 this evening for the championship of the Carrier Mills invitational blind draw tournament.
The tournament started Thursday night with Rosiclare drawing first blood, taking a 62-48 decision from Metropolis. In the second game of the evening the host club raced to a 84-67 victory over Eldorado.
Tonight's action will get underway at 7 with Thursday's losers playing for third place honors. Then comes the title tilt.
Rosiclare, with a decisive 84-50 decision over Metropolis earlier in the season, had lots of trouble with the boys from down south during the first two quarters of play, leading only 17-11 at the quarter and 29-26 at halftime.

Eldorado, who had held the unbeaten Carrier Mills Wildcats to a 56-50 decision only a week ago, was no match for the rebounding, fast-breaking, hot shooting 'Cats last night.
But Eldorado can claim the highest score made against Carrier Mills this season, the 67 points being 11 better than the previous high, scored by Harrisburg in a losing effort Dec. 8.
At the free throw line Eldorado was little less than sensational, shooting a fine 700, hitting 21 times and missing only nine attempts. Richard Overton, senior center, was the big gun in that department, connecting on ten without a miss.
The winning Carrier Mills team raced to a 9-3 lead early in the game, then Eldorado closed the gap a little, but at the end of the opening frame the 'Cats were in front 20-14. And the second quarter was even more in favor of the home team with Carrier Mills scoring 24 and holding Eldorado to 10 to take a big 44-22 halftime lead.

Sugar Bowl Grid Game a Sellout

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Sugar Bowl officials proudly laid claim today to the "most attractive" match of all the post-season football classics, with a sellout crowd of 80,875 assured for the Jan. 1 meeting between Tennessee and Baylor.
While the Cotton and Orange Bowls are having trouble disposing of tickets, Sugar Bowl General Manager Fred Digby said the contest pitting Bowden Wyatt's undefeated Volunteers against Sam Boyd's Bears "has caught the fancy of the people."

"I think everyone agrees that this is the most attractive of the bowl game this year," Digby said.
The sellout was the first for the Sugar Bowl since Oklahoma defeated North Carolina on Jan. 1, 1949.

Vasquez has won 45 of 58 fights.

Rosi Favored In TV Bout with Vasquez Tonight

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Paolo Rosi, the balding Italian who is as agile in the ring as he is on the dance floor, ruled a 240-lb favorite over Baby Vasquez in tonight's nationally televised 10-round bout at Biscayne Arena.

Youth Freed in Marine's Slaying After Lie Test

FLORA, Ill. (U)—Leon Bee, 19, held for questioning in the slaying of a young Marine, was freed today after taking a lie test.

Bee, arrested Thursday at Evansville, Ind., was ordered released by Asst. State's Atty. Bill Cherkos.

Authorities said their investigation into the fatal shooting of Olvis Kirk, 21, of Winslow, Ind., was continuing.

Cherkos said he was not at liberty to disclose the results of Bee's lie detector test, which the youth took willingly.

Bee, who recently received a bad conduct discharge from the Marine Corps, was reported to have left Camp Ellis, Calif., in the company of Kirk and a third man identified as C. A. Lewis.

Kirk was to have reported to the Crane, Ind. ammunition depot Dec. 24. Instead, his body was found with a bullet in his back on Wednesday. Authorities estimated he had been dead 8 to 10 hours.

Sheriff Harry Sproat said Bee told police Lewis also had been dishonorably discharged.

In addition to the lie test, authorities checked a report from Centralia, Ill., that three Marines, one said to resemble the dead youth, were seen at a Marissa, Ill., nightclub Monday night.

Bob Feller Quits Baseball

CLEVELAND (U)—Bob Feller announced today that he is retiring from baseball.

Feller, 36, at his peak the greatest strikeout king of the game's modern era, announced his plans at a press conference in Cleveland's lakefront stadium, scene of some of his most impressive triumphs.

The once "Rapid Robert," said he had rejected several major league offers to devote his time to business.

Feller said he will continue active in the major league players' association, but will surrender his post as player representative in league councils to Indians catcher Jim Hegan.

Feller also rejected an offer to work in the Tribe's front office as a public relations man and part-time scout.

Feller, an almost "automatic" selection for the Baseball Hall of Fame, came from the corn fields of Iowa to succeed Walter Johnson as the strikeout king.

Ava Gardner Withholds Reply to Wedding Proposal

MILAN, Italy (UP)—Walter Chiari, Italian comedian and matinee idol, said today he had asked Ava Gardner to marry him but that she was holding up her reply till she divorces Frank Sinatra.

The actor, who is sometimes known as the Italian Danny Kaye, dismissed as groundless what he described as "sentimental newspaper stories" that he slipped a ring over her finger under a Christmas tree.

"It is simply absurd that Miss Gardner and I could announce our official engagement before she was granted a divorce," Chiari said after the performance of his hit musical "Buonanotte Bettina" Goodnight, Betty.

"I must admit I asked her to become Mrs. Chiari," he added. "I would marry her even today but her answer was very simple and clear. She pointed out that no decision could be expected until her marriage with Sinatra is cancelled by an official sentence of divorce."

Youth is Fatally Crushed by Tractor

GRIDLEY, Ill. (U)—Gerald Dodson, 14, died Thursday when he was crushed beneath a tractor near his father's farm three miles south of Gridley.

Tire marks indicated the tractor, driven by Gerald, had gone into a ditch and turned over as the boy attempted to steer it back onto the road.

11 Persons Burn to Death

IRONWOOD, Mich. (U)—Six members of an Ironwood Township family burned to death in their two-story frame home today, leaving the father who had left for work an hour earlier as the only survivor.

The dead were Mrs. Ina Heileg, 31, her four children—Dennis, 10, Sandra, 9, Linda, 7, and Keith, 2, and a nephew, John Gallo, 13. William Heileg, 32, the father, had left for work at 5:30 a. m., only an hour before neighbor Matt Kleimola saw the fire.

The Ironwood fire department reported the fire possibly started from an explosion in a coal furnace. Heileg was called home near the Peterson iron mine near Bessemer where he worked.

ST. MARYS, W. Va. (U)—Five members of a rural family burned to death when fire engulfed their three-room frame home seven miles north of here today. Six other persons escaped.

Pleasant County Coroner C. A. Ruttenbutter said flames spread quickly through the home of Layman Speece, 55, when his daughter Mabel used crude oil to start a fire in a woodburning stove. The oil exploded.

Fields Claim Kadar Acting Best for Hungary

BUDAPEST (U)—Noel Field told Western newspapermen Thursday he was convinced the government of Premier Janos Kadar was acting in the best interests of the Hungarian people and had saved the nation "from white terror."

Field and his wife Herta of the "disappearing Fields" received Western newsmen at their home in suburban Gellert Hill for the first time since they disappeared in Hungary in 1949. The meeting was in their four roomed villa near the scene of some of the heaviest fighting of the Hungarian revolution.

Both the Fields, who are now white haired, have been granted political asylum in Hungary. The 53-year-old Noel and his German-born wife, a naturalized American citizen, said they had no intention of returning to the United States.

"Any plans I had to return to the United States are now farther off than ever before because life is exciting here after the Hungarian revolution," Field, a former State Department employee, said. "Fields chatted amicably with newsmen for an hour. Both he and his wife refused to have their pictures taken."

Mrs. Fields said she wanted to remain in Hungary "because I've come to admire the Hungarian people."

Eisenhower to Spend Week End at Augusta Golf Club

WASHINGTON (U)—President Eisenhower took off today for a weekend of relaxation at the Augusta, Ga., National Golf Club.

He was accompanied aboard the presidential plane Columbine by his son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, and Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the presidential physician.

The President on Monday will hold a series of meetings with Republican congressional leaders on plans for the coming session of Congress. On Tuesday, New Year's Day, he will meet with congressional leaders of both parties.

2 Paratroopers Killed in Jump

FT. CAMPBELL, Ky. (U)—Two paratroopers, making a routine training jump, were killed Thursday when their parachutes became entangled as they left a plane.

The victims were Sgt. I. C. Richard D. Cammer of Marine City, Mich., who would have been 28 today, and Cpl. Paul N. Varnes of Gainesville, Fla.

Witnesses said the accident occurred during a training jump from 1,250 feet. They said the two chutes tangled and failed to open properly. One of the men was able to open a reserve chute about 100 feet above the ground but was too late to halt the fast descent.

Becker Named Asst. State Treasurer

SPRINGFIELD (U)—Conrad F. Becker, Red Bud, was appointed Thursday as assistant state treasurer by State Treasurer-elect Elmer Hoffman.

Becker is regional director of the Federal Housing Administration and a former state treasurer. The appointment will become effective Jan. 14, when Hoffman takes office.

Becker served as assistant treasurer under Hoffman during Hoffman's last term of office in 1953-54.

Olney Woman To Observe Her 107th Birthday

OLNEY, Ill. (U)—A publicity-shy Olney woman who will observe her 107th birthday on New Year's Eve consented to step briefly into the limelight today.

The first newspaper-published picture of Mrs. Louise Godejohann appeared today in the Olney Daily Mail.

A native of St. Louis, Mrs. Godejohann lives with a widowed daughter. She has lived in the same home for 83 years.

Her husband, William, died in 1930. He was a cigar manufacturer in southern Illinois, turning out a brand known as the "Sam Hill." He was a native of St. Clair County.

A broken hip suffered in a fall at the age of 102 didn't slow up Mrs. Godejohann much. She's proud of the fact that she picked a winner in President Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956.

Three Newsmen Enter Red China, Can Face Fines

WASHINGTON (UP)—Three American newsmen who slipped into Red China illegally could face heavy fines, imprisonment and loss of other privileges, government officials said today.

The State and Treasury Departments already are considering whether banking and other accounts of the newsmen should be frozen. This would mean that their families, for example, could not draw on bank accounts while the newsmen are in Red China.

Government legal officers are determining possible legal actions which might be taken against the newsmen. When they do come home, their passports may be seized—an action that could bar any foreign travel for an indefinite period.

Officials told the United Press that no decisions had been made on what course of action, if any, will be followed.

The first newsmen to enter Red China in violation of passport restrictions was William Worthy, Negro correspondent for the Baltimore Afro-America. Worthy entered Red China the day before Christmas.

State Department officials heard Thursday that Edmund Stevens and Phillip Hollington, both of Look Magazine, had flown from Moscow to Peking without U. S. government permission. Hollington is a photographer.

President Begins Reshuffling U. S. Diplomats

WASHINGTON (U)—President Eisenhower evidently has started a sweeping reshuffle of U. S. diplomatic assignments that may ultimately affect some 25 to 35 diplomatic posts.

The reshuffle started Thursday with the resignation of Winthrop W. Aldrich as U. S. ambassador to Great Britain.

The President accepted Aldrich's resignation with "utmost regret" and named John Hay (Jock) Whitney, New York financier and sportsman, to assume the top diplomatic post.

There was some speculation that Mr. Eisenhower also will appoint new envoys to Moscow and Paris.

Moreover, some of the very early nominations are expected to include appointments to West Germany, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Norway.

More Snow for East; Cold Grips Florida Areas

By UNITED PRESS
A snow storm that piled up to 13 inches in the Buffalo, N.Y., area swirled into New England today and weathermen warned accumulations will reach three to seven inches.

Colder weather also gripped the East and extended into Florida where winter resort visitors shivered in 40-degree readings at Miami Beach.

A two-day eastern snow storm buried Buffalo under a 13-inch blanket of white. Weathermen said the storm will dump three to five inches today in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine and up to seven inches in southern New York state.

Light snow flurries also are expected from the northern half of the Great Plains east to Pennsylvania.

A new cold air invasion hit the northern Great Lakes area and will spread as far as the north-eastern Ohio Valley by nightfall. Scattered snow flurries and rain occurred in the mid-Mississippi Valley in advance of the cold air.

Fog continued to plague the Northwest, but there was no sign of rain in drought-stricken Southern California where a raging brush fire already has caused millions of dollars of damage in the plush Malibu Beach area.

Mac's Christmas Matinee Helps Fill Baskets for Needy

Enough children came to Mac's Christmas party, a children's matinee held at the Grand theatre Monday afternoon to furnish 700 cans of food for distribution in Salvation Army Christmas baskets to needy families.

Admission to the Christmas matinee was one can of food and some of the boys and girls generously brought more than one can, knowing the cause for which it was going. Belmont McDaniel at Mac's Car and Home Supply, by which the Christmas Matinee party is sponsored annually, expressed gratitude for the helpful and cooperative spirit of the parents who were responsible for this generous response.

Lt. Mildred Wallace and her assistant, Lt. Marion Haldeman, of the Harrisburg Salvation Army post, by whom the food was distributed, said that she was greatly assisted in packing the baskets for the needy by Mrs. Wendell Bramlett, Mrs. Frank S. Gray and Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Taylor, also by James Brasher, coal truck driver, who distributed the baskets. Some of the toys taken to the children were donated by Robert Keltner, at the Rainbow Rexall Drug store.

With money from the Christmas kettles and other contributions received, the Salvation Army bought additional supplies to go with the canned goods and fixed baskets for one hundred families, in Harrisburg, Eldorado, Carrier Mills, and Omaha.

The two officers, and young people who sang carols, also visited seven nursing homes in Saline and White counties taking candy and fruit to the aged. To the officers these visits with the elderly people was one of the most rewarding parts of the Christmas service rendered by the local Salvation Army post.

Actor Ordered To Support Child

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Actor Jess Barker, former husband of Susan Hayward, has been ordered to pay $50 monthly support of a year-old child born out of wedlock to actress Yvonne Doughty.

Superior Judge Walter H. Odemar Thursday ruled in a paternity suit that Barker fathered Miss Doughty's daughter, Morgana Ruth.

The close of the two-day trial was highlighted by an outburst from the actress. She shouted at Barker, "I hate you. I hate you."

Miss Doughty testified that she met Barker in 1954 and became intimate with him on their second date when his divorce was pending from Miss Hayward. She said she was "his girl friend" until she told him she was going to have a baby.

Federal Kidnaping Charge Filed Against Paroled Convict

EAST ST. LOUIS (UP)—A federal kidnaping charge, punishable by death if the victim was harmed, has been filed against a paroled convict who allegedly abducted a young St. Louis woman and assaulted her.

Nathaniel Courtland, a Negro, was charged with kidnaping Thursday. Officials said he also will be charged with rape.

They said Courtland used a knife to force the young woman and her companion, Bruce Zuckerman, a pharmacy student, to leave a drive-in restaurant and travel across the state line from Missouri to Illinois, where Courtland forced Zuckerman out of the car and drove off with the woman.

Maximum punishment for rape in Illinois is life imprisonment.

Dr. Wallis Accepts Litchfield Pastorate

Dr. R. W. Wallis former pastor of the Harrisburg First Baptist church, has accepted the pastorate of the First Baptist church in Litchfield, effective Jan. 1.

Dr. Wallis will go to Litchfield from Waco, Texas, where he and Mrs. Wallis have been teaching at Baylor University.

Dr. Wallis also is a former pastor of the First Baptist church in Marion.

Red Diplomats Invited to Inaugural Ball

WASHINGTON (U)—Ambassadors and ministers from Iron Curtain countries—including those from Russia and Hungary—have been invited to be "honored guests" at President Eisenhower's Inaugural Ball next month.

The Communist diplomats last week received invitations to the fancy dress affair despite two facts which will make their attendance somewhat ironic:—Some of the money received from inaugural ball ticket sales will be donated to Hungarian relief.

—The name of the presidential reviewing stand for the Inaugural Parade preceding the ball has been changed from "Court of Honor" to "Court of the Spirit of Freedom" as a tribute to the Polish and Hungarian uprisings against Moscow.

Inaugural Ball committee and State Department spokesmen emphasize that tradition and protocol are responsible for the "honored guest" status for Russian Ambassador Georgi N. Zaroubin and satellite diplomats.

A Soviet Embassy spokesman said that "as far as I know" Zaroubin plans to attend the ball just as he did in 1953. Other Iron Curtain social secretaries who could be reached indicated the same about their bosses.

Fined Following Highway Incident

Joe Lewis of Tunnel Hill was fined $63 yesterday by Justice of the Peace C. H. Austin of Carrier Mills when he pleaded guilty to charges of leaving the scene of an accident and intoxication.

Lewis was brought to the county jail when he could not pay the fine. He was picked up by state police following a highway incident near Ledford.

British Doctors Threaten to Quit Health Program

LONDON (U)—Forty-thousand British doctors threatened today to quit the state-controlled National Health Service unless the government meets their demands for a 24 per cent pay increase.

The dispute involving some 22,000 general practitioners and 18,000 consultants and hospital staff members will reach a showdown next Friday when medical leaders meet with government officials to discuss pay demands.

The British Medical Assn. said the "strike" against the National Health Service will not affect patients. Doctors will continue to work but will refuse to accept their government salaries which have remained unchanged since 1951, the MA said.

The 1948 national health program gave free medical treatment to every inhabitant of Britain against payment of a compulsory insurance premium of up to $2.80 a month.

Since then, the government has authorized small charges for medicine and prescriptions, but has turned down the physicians' requests for more pay.

The government now pays the doctors as civil servants at the rate of $6,160 a year. They demand an annual salary of $7,560 to meet the rising cost of living in Britain.

Return from Trip To Miami Beach, Fla., Awarded for Sales

Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson recently returned from Miami Beach, Fla., where they attended the Sales Congress held in conjunction with the American Farm Bureau Federation convention.

Mr. Henderson, agency manager for IAA Insurance service in Saline county, won the trip for himself and Mrs. Henderson by producing over $500,000 of life insurance in the 1956 agency year. He was one of seven members of the Illinois agency force to win this honor. The Hendersons travelled to Miami on a special chartered car of the Illinois Central Railroad, along with other members of the Illinois group. While in Miami the group, designated the Illinois All-American team, was honored at a meeting of Farm Bureau Insurance agents throughout the nation.

While in Miami, the group stayed at the new ocean-front Hotel Seville.

Southern Members of House Group Ask Segregation in Dist. Columbia Schools

WASHINGTON (UP)—The four southern members of a six-man House subcommittee called today for re-establishment of racially segregated public schools in the District of Columbia.

They said that two years of "forced" racial integration had lowered educational standards, resulted in "appalling" disciplinary problems, and created sex problems of "vital concern" to parents.

The subcommittee made the findings of lowered educational standards and sexual and disciplinary problems in its formal report. Then in a separate document labeled "additional views" the four Southerners called for a return to public school segregation. The formal report was unsigned.

The additional views were signed by Chairman James C. Davis (D-Ga.) and Reps. John Bell Williams (D-Miss), Woodrow W. Jones (D-NC), and Joel T. Broyhill (R-Va.).

The two other subcommittee members, Reps. A. L. Miller (R-Neb) and Dewitt S. Hyde (R-Md) refused to sign the formal report. They conferred behind closed doors on whether to write a minority report.

Giant Boeing 707, a 600-mile-an-hour jet transport, will soon be available for commercial aviation.

It takes a GIANT to move people

In aviation it takes a giant to move masses of people fast. In selling, too, it takes a giant to move the people... a giant who lives in every town, the daily newspaper.

This giant not only lives in every town but in practically every home—every day. And in the home, the newspaper remains to be read, put down, picked up and read again, so that it's no trouble at all for a newspaper advertiser to make a local call. Daily newspaper circulation is at a new high—over 56,000,000.

Many of the ads in the paper will end up in a purse or a pocket because people habitually use the newspaper as a shopping guide. That's why advertisers—local, regional and national—spend more money in daily newspapers than in radio, television, magazines and outdoor combined.

To move a multitude of goods, you must move multitudes of people to action. Use "action" advertising. Use the daily newspaper.

All business is local...and so are all newspapers.

A movie-length scene of his childhood and interviews with the uncle and aunt who raised him, will be released soon after hush-hush filming by a pair of independent Hollywood producers. And in the spring, Warner Bros. will give a full-scale, national re-issue to his first two movies, "East of Eden" and "Rebel Without a Cause."

Police Tickets Get

Lazy Husbands to Work

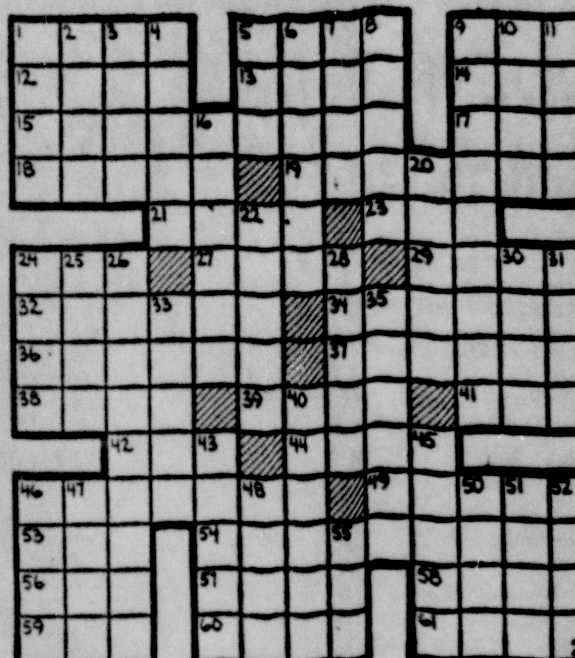

MADISON HEIGHTS, Mich. — During a cleanup campaign Patrolman John Reuse ticketed 14 homeowners for allowing trash to pile up around their homes. He was back a week later to check up on results and was greeted with profuse thanks from some grateful housewives. One explained: "I've been trying to get my lazy man to clean up the yard for years, and your ticket got him going. Now you can give him a ticket so he'll paint the house?"

Judge Recalls Strap
Of Good Old Days

CAMDEN, N. J. — Federal Judge Thomas J. Madden mixed judicial wisdom and a lament for the "good old days" in appraising the situation of a young man before the court for the second time.

"Tell me, son," the judge asked, "how did your first arrest come about?"

"Well, I guess I was not able to get along with the family at home, and my father had me arrested to teach me a lesson," the youth replied.

"I will tell you one thing," the judge observed. "That would never have been the way my father would have handled such a situation in our home. A strap would have probably settled the matter within a matter of minutes."

HEADLINERS OF 1956

FIRST CRACK IN THE SOVIET satellite empire appeared in Poland where workers staged a bloody uprising in Poznan in June. Some 38 patriots paid with their lives. Anti-Communist workers, above, surround a captured Soviet tank being maneuvered into position to fire on Poznan's Communist secret police headquarters during the uprising.

HUNGARIAN HORROR is depicted in this photo as a young boy watches Soviet tanks fire on an objective in the battle for Budapest. Heroic Hungarians battled Red armor with sticks, stones and bare fists, and after apparently winning their objective, the withdrawal of Red forces from Hungary, Russia suddenly reintervened and crushed the uprising in a brutal blood bath.

DISTRAUGHT MOTHER, Mrs. Morris Weinberger, breaks down as she appeals in vain for return of her 30-day-old son, Peter, kidnaped from his carriage on July 4. Baby was found dead on Aug. 24.

LANDSLIDE WINNER over Adlai Stevenson, President Eisenhower acknowledges cheers in a Washington hotel late on election night. On Feb. 29 Ike announced he would run for a second term. Then on June 8 he was rushed to the hospital for an intestinal operation. Within a month he was back at his desk and on Nov. 6 piled up a nearly 10-million-vote majority.

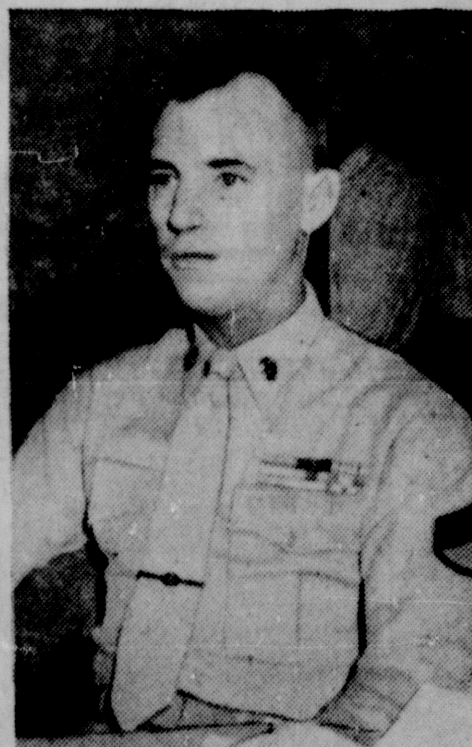

DESEGREGATION of the nation's schools in compliance with the Supreme Court order brought racial strife to some areas in the South. Riots, sparked by White Supremacy advocates, occurred in Clinton, Tenn., and Sturgis, Ky. Tennessee National Guardsmen, with fixed bayonets, hold a crowd at bay in front of the Clinton Courthouse.

PRIZE IN MIDDLE EAST fighting was the Suez Canal. Egypt's Nasser seized the canal in July. In late October a joint Anglo-French force, attacking by sea and air, moved into the Canal Zone only to find the vital waterway blocked as shown by sunken ships. At year's end United Nations forces had moved in to restore order and clear the canal.

DRAMA AT SEA found crippled—Pan American clipper, en route from Hawaii to United States, forced to ditch in the Pacific. The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Ponchartrain, on weather duty at the time, rescued all 31 persons aboard before the plane sank.

COURT-MARTIALED for his part in the Parris Island "death march," Marine Sgt. Matthew McKeon was found guilty; ordered cashiered from service. Later his punishment was reduced and he was restored to duty.

ISRAELI OFFICER briefs his men on plan of attack as they engage Egyptian forces in Sinai Desert. Israelis easily captured Sinai Peninsula and Gaza Strip. Victory was short-lived as United Nations ordered them out of Egyptian territory.

←HELPLESS, the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria lies on her side as an empty lifeboat drifts away. In an epic of the sea, 1,700 persons were snatched from a watery grave; at least 25 others perished. The Andrea Doria sank after colliding with the Swedish liner Stockholm in the Atlantic.

LAST RITES are administered by a Catholic priest to a victim of Los Angeles commuter wreck. Thirty persons were killed and 140 others injured when the train, operating at excessive speed through the yards, jumped the tracks.

ONE IN A MILLION collision took place over Grand Canyon in Arizona. One hundred and twenty-eight persons died when two huge airliners, property of United Air Lines and TWA, collided in mid-air. No one survived. Above is artist's conception of the ill-fated rendezvous. Starred areas are the final resting places of the two planes.
